BRISBANE MERCHANTS IN MOVE TO CIRCULATE PETITIONS FOR STREET LIGHT INSTALLATION

Tentative Plan Calls For 50 Lamps To Be Spotted Over Entire Community

Making steady, definite progress on the street lighting project which it inaugurated more than a month ago, the Brisbane Merchants Association appointed, at the meeting Thursday evening of this week, a committee to circulate a petition asking the Board of Supervisors that a lighting district be formed in Brisbane.

Petitions will be in the hands of the committee today and it is planned that the documents will be presented to the supervisors, Wednesday of next week.

Supervisor H. H. Smith, attending the merchants meeting Thursday, declared that he was happy to see the business men take the progressive action they did and assured them that the supervisors would give full co-operation in order to carry out the wishes of local tax payers.

After the petitions are filed a hearing will be held, then an election. Action will be hurried in order that, should the people of Brisbane want one, a lighting district might be organized and that provisions for in-

FOUR MORE NEW MEMBERS TAKEN BY VALLEY CLUB

Livestock Project, Lighting, Street, Bridge Celebration And Educational Topics Are Taken Up At Meeting

Four new applications for membership were received and accepted by the Visitacion Valley Improvement Club at the regular meeting held, Monday evening of this week at W. O. W. Hall. The new members are Fat Boy Barbecue, Bayshore at Raymond avenue; Tony J. Ferro, 366 Leland avenue; Clifford L. Rea, 315 Wheeler avenue, and Stanley Hergott, 175 Tunnel avenue.

Chairman of several committees reported progress on various projects. George Allen, chairman of the livestock pavilion booster committee, reported that he had recently conferred with Mr. Sooy, official of Agricultural District No. 1 which is sponsoring the pavilion construction. Sooy stated that two bills were now before the state legislature, both of which are intended to speed development of the project. The bills have a good chance of passing, sooy said.

LIGHTS AND STREETS

Chairman Marks, of the lighting committee, reported that all street light bulbs in the district which were broken or burned out had been replaced. J. F. Calverley, chairman of the streets committee, reported that he had compiled a listing of sunken and broken spots in the streets and thoroughfares which had been covered with sand and debris

Bayshore Fire Guts Cuneo Residence

Fire of undetermined origin gutted the home of Andrew Cuneo, 124 Acacia street, Bayshore, Monday morning of this week.

Immediately after the fire started, Assistant Fire Chief Parker turned in the alarm. Chief Boehme and Parker sped equipment to the scene. They laid two working lines to the house which had become a mass of flames. Additional firemen arrived and four streams of water were directed on the blaze.

After the fire was under control, some local resident, without the permission of Chief Boehme and unknown to him, turned in a San Francisco alarm. A batallion chief and equipment from Station No. 42, Silver and San Bruno avenues, responded. Upon arrival at the scene, the batallion chief complimented the Bayshore firemen for the efficient manner in which they extinguished the blaze.

Owing to the fact that the Bayshore Department functioned short handed, several citizens assisted the fire fighters for which service Chief Boehme extended his appreciation.

Easter Services On Mt. Davidson Sunday

The fifteenth annual Sunrise Easter service in San Francisco will be held this Sunday morning atop Mount Davidson, highest peak in the city.

The far reaching beacon of the tallest cross in the world will guide approximately 50,000 worshipers who will climb the trails to the mountain crest for the service, which will begin promptly at 6 o'clock.

During the last year new trails up the mountain side have been constructed and old ones widened and leveled to afford easier ascent.

Parking facilities for 10,000 automobiles in the vicinity of Mount Davidson have been made, but no cars will be permitted on the crest.

Special street car service will be arranged by both the Municipal and Market Street Railways for the accommodation of worshipers.

SIXTY CHILDREN ESCAPE INJURY IN STAGE CRASH

Three Others Hurt As Bus And Auto Collide On Mission At Sickles

Sixty school children escaped unscathed Sunday of this week when a large bus plunged through the front of a store, injuring three persons, after a collision with an automobile at Mission street and Sickles avenue, Daly City.

Those injured were Mrs. Florence Sudro, 53, 28 Sickles avenue, a patron of the store, severe lacerations; Rossendo Armento, 35, 1132 Eighteenth street, driver of the automobile, concussion of the brain and lacerations; Miss Frances Alaga, 32, 21 Risel street, passenger in the automobile, cuts and bruises.

ALL ALTAR BOYS

The bus was proceeding out Mission street, carrying the 60 children, all altar boys at St. Peter's Church, Twenty-fourth and Alabama streets, to Holy Cross Cemetery to attend annual memorial services for the late Father Peter C. Yorke, Irish patriot.

Skidding on the slippery paving, the bus collided with the Armento automobile in the middle of the intersection, caromed over the curb and

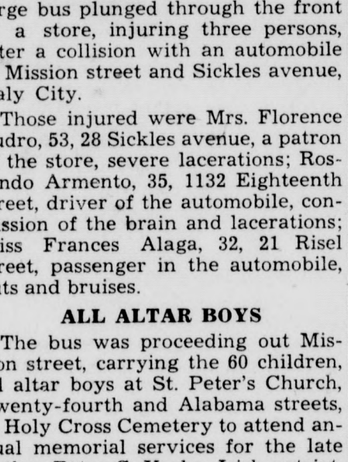
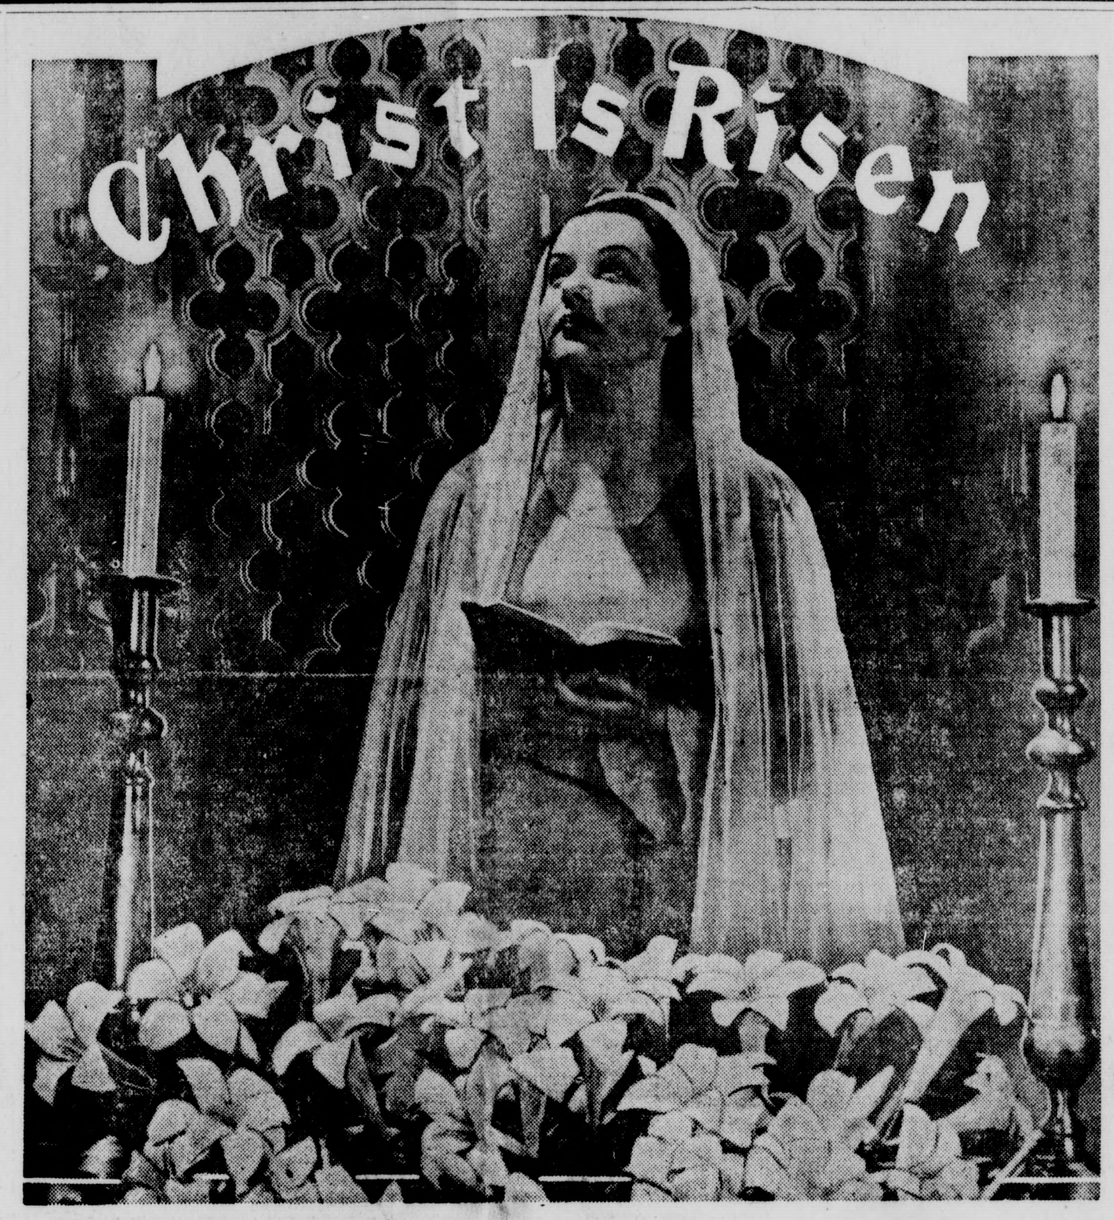
PLUNGED 12,000 FEET TO DEATH



Anatole Maren

Posses recently searched the wilds near Coalinga, Cal., for the body of Anatole Maren, San Francisco WPA worker, who jumped from a passenger plane en route to Los Angeles. No motive for the bizarre death plunge could be ascertained. He leaped after forcing the "safety catch" on the transport's door. He was not missed until passengers and the stewardess felt the rush of air.



RING out the bells, beloved, the joyous Easter bells,
Celestial harmony along their cadence rolls and swells,
The blessed Christ is risen in the hearts that throb and thrill
Responsive to Love's law wherein we may all laws fulfill.

MILITARY TACTICS—Recently I read in the Los Angeles Times that Japan was minimizing its army and making definite moves to encourage world peace. I also noted that the article said nothing about what attitude Japan is taking in its increase of naval strength.

Because Japan is so geographically situated it can well do without a strong standing army. Sailors who are taught military tactics for land combat can easily fill the bill. Of course this is pure speculation, but doesn't it seem logical?

Fool Proof Plane In First Tests

Engineers of the Stearman-Hammond Aircraft Corporation were making minor alterations this week on the Model Y Stearman-Hammond fool proof plane following its recent successful flight at Mills Field.

The two place, pusher type plane, mounted on a tricycle carriage, motored from the factory where it was built, a mile north of here, down the dirt road paralleling the Bayshore highway, and when it reached the field took off for a 10 minute hop.

It circled the field several times and landed successfully and then a second pilot took the plane aloft for another brief flight.

Approved last year by Department of Commerce officials, the plane which made the recent hop was the first to be constructed on the West Coast and was built at the plant near here.

It features the tricycle landing gear, which eliminates ground loops and nose overs. The front wheel is moveable, making it possible to operate the plane as an automobile.

The motor is located immediately behind and above the two side by side seats. The pilot has an unobstructed view from his place far forward.

ATTEMPT IS MADE BY SEVERAL COUNTY UNDERTAKERS TO PUT CROSBY OUT OF CORONER JOB

The language of the county charter was again invoked, Monday, to begin ouster proceedings against a member of San Mateo County's official family. It seems that making a political football of our charter has grown to be a favorite pastime among some of our citizens who lay claim to ultra civic mindedness regarding the welfare of the people.

Charges and counter charges appear to be the order of day whenever it is desired to attain the end of separating some "undesirable" public servant from his job.

Charges were preferred before the Board of Supervisors at their meeting, Wednesday of this week. that Coroner William F. Crosby had been guilty of violation of almost every section of the charter, and demand was made that he be removed forthwith. Attorney Edmund Scott presented the charges in the interest of persons whom he repeatedly referred to as "my clients." These are said to be the same group of undertakers who, on a previous occasion, filed charges against the coroner.

The board referred the matter to the county executive and district attorney to investigate and prefer formal charges if their judgment found such action warranted.

Further business was as follows: Bond guaranteeing payment of costs of organization of the Colma Fire District was referred to the district attorney.

Application for the position of assistant county engineer was referred

S. M. County Double Flood Relief Quota

Final reports from the American Red Cross show that San Mateo County more than doubled its quota in money subscribed to the eastern flood relief program. Local contributors gave $18,176.92 to the fund. San Mateo County quota was $9000.

Cities and communities in this area gave the following sums: Daly City, $734.66; South San Francisco, $1,000.91; San Bruno, $439.54; Colma, $159.12; Bayshore $93.50; Sharp Park, $42; Rockaway Beach, $34.60, and Brisbane, $18.50.

Brilliant American Tenor Ends Career

Amid a thunder of applause, John McCormack, brilliant American tenor, stepped from the stage of the Buffalo Consistory auditorium, at Buffalo, N. Y., late last week, and rung down the curtains on his career of phenomenal success which started 28 years ago.

There was no theatrical farewell, no fanfare, as McCormack made his final American appearance on the concert stage.

"I'm definitely through with concerts, and this is the way I wanted to leave the stage," he said. "I didn't want to say goodbye. I just wanted to step out."

McCormack announced that he will sing but one more concert—in Dublin, Ireland.

"I want to say goodbye to the people in that country," he explained.

The Johnson Hardware Store has served valley patrons for 29 years. N. Anderson, uncle of S. C. Johnson, was the former proprietor.

SANITARY BOARD FOR BAYSHORE MOVES MEETING

Choose Riley Hall Instead Of League Building In Which To Hold Sessions

The Sanitary Board at Bayshore acted by motion at their session Thursday evening of last week, to change their meeting place from the Voters League Building to the Riley Hall.

Reason for the change, S. Elinger, secretary of the Sanitary Board told the Sun Tribune, was the fact that the City of Bayshore had a lease on the upper auditorium of the League Hall. B. E. Ford, a member of the Sanitary Board, declared that the body was a party to illegal procedure when it paid the Voters League $7.50 per month rent and met in the auditorium which was leased to the City of Bayshore.

On the recommendation of their attorney, the Sanitary Board passed a motion to move their meeting place to Riley Hall.

Heavy Rains Flood Peninsula Roads

One of the heaviest rains ever reported in San Mateo County fell early this week. Low lands were flooded. Slides and overflowing creeks paralyzed traffic at several points.

For one-half hour, Monday of this week, the Bayshore highway near Brisbane was blocked by slides. Highway crews were speedily summoned and the route was again opened for traffic. In several other sections Bayshore highway was under water. Monday night traffic was diverted from the highway in the vicinity of Redwood City, as flood waters coupled with the unusually high tide crossed the highway.

The Salada Beach road was partially closed early this week and the highway north of Sharp Park was flooded. Traffic was diverted to Skyline boulevard. Skyline likewise had troubles, for in the vicinity of the San Francisco county jail

There were 563 births in San Mateo County during 1936, and yet nearby Monterey County, with a much smaller population, had 936 visits from the stork, according to figures released by the state public health director.

Almost every county, including San Mateo, reported an increased birth rate for last year, and the total number, 84,460, exceeded the 1935 rate by 5 per cent.

Tree Removal Order Refused

Peach growers in the Yucaipa Valley won a point in their fight against compulsory removal of trees infested with mosaic disease, when Superior Judge F. A. Leonard handed down a ruling which defers any action until next September. "In view of the uncertainty that seems to exist as to the mosaic disease, the newness of it, and the doubt as to the extent of the disease in the orchards of Yucaipa Valley, I feel that additional study should be given the subject before any court order is given that may result in wholesale destruction of property, which, in many instances, represents the life savings and labor of the orchardists," the judge said.

San Fernando Crop Forecast

Despite last summer's heat and the recent cold wave joining with new home subdivisions in reducing San Fernando's agricultural activity, a survey of farm acreage presages appreciable production for oncoming seasons. At least 25,000 acres will be devoted to truck gardening during the summer. It is estimated that approximately 7000 acres will be planted to beans, with sugar beets occupying approximately 850 acres. Walnuts cover fully 7000 acres, citrus 10,000 and alfalfa 6500.

Lettuce Acreage Declines

Lettuce acreage in the Watsonville area for the August harvest will show a decided drop from the acreage of last year according to figures released by Charles S. Brooks, secretary-manager of the Grower-Shippers Association of Salinas and Watsonville, with a consequent drop in the entire Salinas-Watsonville and San Juan harvest. The estimated acreage for the August harvest in the Watsonville district will be 7619 acres as compared to 9658 acres planted in 1936, a decrease of 2039 acres.

Napa Fair May Get $20,000

Citizens of northern Napa County are welcoming the announcement that State assistance in the amount of $20,000 practically is assured for the Silverado Fair Association's agricultural exposition and race meet to be held next July at Calistoga. A Napa delegation in Sacramento was advised by Fred Links of the State department of finance that an arrangement can be made for an appropriation of $20,000. Seven thousand five hundred dollars of this can be given out in agricultural premiums.

File Complaint Against Growers

The National Labor Relations Board announced it has issued complaints against the Grower Shipper Association of Central California, Salinas, charging "numerous violations of the Wagner Act" in connection with the lettuce pickers strike of 1936. One complaint charges the association with "causing the strike." A hearing was ordered held in Salinas March 29.

Wine Consumption Gains

Sales of California wine gained 35 per cent in 1936 and consumption of American wine increased 32 per cent during the same period, the Wine Institute announced. National use of wine increased from 45,950,000 gallons in 1935 to 60,000,000 gallons in 1936. Eighty-eight per cent of the wine consumed in the United States during that period came from California, the survey showed.

Pasturage Conditions Good

Stockmen in northwestern Sonoma County are rejoicing over the satisfactory progress of new green feed on the ranges of that section. Warm weather, with interspersed light rains, is insuring pasturage to make fat lambs for market in late spring. Revised estimates place the lamb crop about 20 per cent below the output of 1936.

Poultrymen Prosper

Business during 1936 was the best in history of the San Joaquin Valley Poultry Producers' Association, according to Manager W. B. Roby. Membership increased 47 per cent, he said, and the volume of business was double the average of the past three years.

Cattlemen Expect Banner Year

Feed conditions in Kern County are better than they have been for many years, according to a survey made by Agricultural Commissioner Burtch, who said cattle and sheep raisers are looking for one of the best years in the history of the industry.

Tree Dusting By Plane Banned

Airplane dusting of orchards with poisonous insecticides was prohibited by the Colusa County Board of Supervisors when it adopted an ordinance making the practice illegal excepting in extreme emergency cases. Airplanes may be used only when the ground is too wet or other conditions prevent the use of ground machines. The ordinance was adopted at the instance of the beekeepers of Colusa, headed by Thomas C. Burleson, president of the State Beekeepers Association.

SAMMY JAY SPREADS A FALSE REPORT

SOME people like to spread bad news. They would rather spread bad news than good news. It's queer, but it's so. Sammy Jay is that kind. He never seems so happy as when he is flying about through the Green Forest telling some dreadful news to everybody he meets. And this isn't the worst of it. He doesn't always tell the truth! He sometimes makes things out a great deal worse than they really are so as to make his story more exciting. And so it often happens that Sammy spreads false reports. You know false reports are stories that are not true or only partly true.

Now, Sammy Jay had happened along just in time to see Farmer Brown's boy pick up poor Mrs. Grouse after he had broken the hard, icy crust that had made her a prisoner underneath. She had been so weak and worn out that she could only flutter feebly when he had set her free, and so he had picked her up and started for home with her. Sammy Jay had seen this. His eyes had popped out with excitement. Here was great news. He couldn't sit still a minute. And what a splendid chance to say something bad about Farmer Brown's boy! Sammy never misses a chance to make trouble for Farmer Brown's boy.

So off he started as fast as he could go. The first one he met was Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Great news! Great news!" screamed Sammy.

"What is it?" asked Chatterer.

"Farmer Brown's boy has killed poor Mrs. Grouse and taken her home for his dinner!" cried Sammy.

"I don't believe it," replied Chatterer, who right that minute was eating nuts that he knew Farmer Brown's boy had left for him.

"You don't have to, but that doesn't make it that it isn't so. I saw him do it," retorted Sammy, and started on.

Right away Chatterer lost his appetite. He didn't know whether to believe it or not. He felt dreadfully sorry for Mrs. Grouse and then, too, he didn't like to think that Farmer Brown's boy had been very good to him, and though he had once hated him, he rather liked him now that he had come to know him, though Chatterer wouldn't have admitted this to anybody for the world. "Oh, my no! I don't believe it," he muttered over and over to himself. "I don't believe it." But just the same he lost his appetite.

Presently Sammy Jay saw Reddy Fox. "Great News! Great news!" shrieked Sammy.

"What is it?" demanded Reddy.

"Farmer Brown's boy has killed poor Mrs. Grouse and taken her home for his dinner," replied Sammy.

"How do you know?" demanded Reddy suspiciously.

"I saw him do it," replied Sammy.

"I hate Farmer Brown's boy!" growled Reddy Fox. "Mrs. Grouse belonged to me. I meant to have her for my dinner some day."

"Why didn't you catch her then?" asked Sammy Jay slily.

"I would have, some day," snapped Reddy.

"The way you have Peter Rabbit!" laughed Sammy.

Reddy couldn't say a word, for you know he had tried and tried to catch Peter Rabbit and never could. He just glared up at Sammy, who just laughed and then flew off to spread the dreadful news. All the rest of the day he told the same story until all the little people who were out that cold winter day in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows, green no longer because they were covered with snow, had heard that poor Mrs. Grouse had been killed by Farmer Brown's boy. And some it made very, very sad. And some, like Reddy and Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote, it made angry, for each of them had meant some day to have Mrs. Grouse for dinner themselves. And all the time Mrs. Grouse wasn't dead at all, as you and I know.

First Aid to the Ailing House
—By— Roger B. Whitman

RENOVATING A BATHROOM

BATHROOMS have been so greatly improved within the last few years that one of old style makes a whole house seem old-fashioned. The points that make a bathroom out-of-date are a bathtub on legs, a high-tank toilet, a wash-basin with a marble top or of old-fashioned design, plaster walls and a wood floor. The door of a bathroom of that kind is usually kept closed at all times, whereas a room of modern design is something to be proud of.

There is no great effort or expense in renovating an old bathroom and in giving it all of the beauty of modern design. A new toilet is built-in in a corner, which completely obviates the collecting of dust beneath and behind it. A built-in tub also permits the fitting of a wall shower, with the use of a curtain to confine the spray. A separate shower stall is preferred to a wall shower, and can often be built at the end of a tub, which thus has only one side open.

Of the new fixtures, the tub is the most expensive. When costs must be kept down, an old style tub can be built-in by removing the legs, wedging it in a corner, and surrounding it by a framework finished with tiles or other waterproof covering. When this is done, the wall surface must come well over the rounded rim of the tub, so that water, running down the walls, will drain into the tub rather than behind the rim.

The most usual finish for bathroom walls is a five-foot or six-foot wainscot of tiles, which are usually set on a concrete base laid on metal lath. Many substitutes for tiles are to be had. In making a selection, it must be borne in mind that the walls should be waterproof, easily cleanable, not affected by steam, and proof against scratching.

The walls above the tile wainscot and the ceiling should have a finish that will not be affected by steam. For this, the modern quick drying enamels are excellent.

For the floor, the choice is between tile, and linoleum, rubber or similar material. Linoleum is very usual because of its warmth and softness.

A sunshiny bathroom can well be finished in one of the cool colors—green or blue. For a north bathroom, the color should be warmer—rose, or a warm yellow, for example.

In the Log-Book

A ship's log-book is the ship's diary, notes a writer in London Answers Magazine. In it are entered the rate of progress according to the log, hence its name, and all other particulars of the ship's course. In it also are entered all details of misdemeanors committed on board, with the culprit's name and the punishment meted out. From this we get the expression, "to log a man," used in the sense of to fine him.

"The world never seems quite so cold to those," says reiterating Rita, "who have warm overcoats."

LOTS WORSE OFF

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SOME say, "Well, there are lots of others, too,
Of others who are lots worse off than you."
I cannot comprehend their cheerful whine:
The grief of others is no balm for mine.
Another's grief adds something to my own:
I wish no other heart this hurt had known,
No other mind had suffered this distress;
Their loss makes mine the greater, not the less.

The beggar's rags make no man's coat of gold,
Or age's feebleness a man less old.
The deeper sorrow of the open ground
Is not a thing to hail with joyful sound.
Whatever I may lose, if less or more,
Another's loss adds nothing to my store.
So tell me not, whatever you may do,
"There are a lot a lot worse off than you."

The grief that gloats will find but small relief
By hiding it behind some greater grief.
However poor another beggar is,
If I have more, then half of it is his.
However dark another mortal's mind,
Then I should share whatever hope I find.
Yes, say to me, "That is the thing to do,
For there are others lots worse off than you."

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

FROM the preceding lessons we have learned that the first, or Finger of Jupiter, indicates the degree and kind of power and purposefulness of its possessor. We must look not only to the conformation of the finger but also to its position on the hand in order to arrive at accurate conclusions.

A forefinger which leans or crooks toward the finger next to it partakes of the qualities of that finger. The Finger of Jupiter which inclines toward it neighbor indicates that purpose is strongly controlled by reflective foresight. And the manner in which it inclines denotes the kind of foresight, whether studious, gloomy, optimistic or doubtful.

The Overcautious Finger of Jupiter.

Three outstanding characteristics mark this type of forefinger: (1) Shortness as compared with the length of the second finger; (2) prominence of the middle joint; (3) pronounced angularity of the inclination toward the second finger.

The nail joint may be either squared or tapered, with a flat though sometimes sharply ridged nail deeply set. In fingers falling within this classification, the entire length may have a stiff resistant feeling under backward pressure.

When you encounter a forefinger of this type, you will make no mistake in placing its owner as a man or woman whose initiative is often stifled by an aversion to "taking chances." Conservatism which becomes unnecessary weighing of pro's and con's is very likely to keep such folk from the enjoyment of life which should otherwise be theirs.

Household Questions

Rugs should be turned around every six months. Frequent turning causes them to wear evenly.

Coddled Apples—Two cups boiling water, one or two cups sugar, eight apples. Make a syrup of sugar and water, boiling five minutes. Core and pare apples; cook slowly in the syrup; cover closely and watch carefully. When tender, lift out the apples, add a little lemon juice to syrup and pour over apples. The cavities in the apples may be filled with jelly or raisins.

Clear boiling water will remove tea stains from table linen.

Cretonne slip covers will retain their color better if washed in bran water.

To make perfect muffins combine all dry ingredients, then add liquids quickly, stirring but not beating. Do not stir after ingredients are moistened. Fill muffin pans two-thirds full and if mixture looks lumpy it will smooth out during baking.

Home Made Crackers—Sift together one-fourth a teaspoonful of salt and one cup of pastry flour. With a knife or tips of the fingers work to a dough with water, sweet milk, or thin cream (the last is preferable). Knead slightly —just enough to get into shape—then roll into a very thin sheet, stamp out with cutters, or cut into rectangular pieces with a sharp knife, prick with a fork, and bake a delicate brown.

Keep the top on the milk bottle so the milk does not absorb ice box or refrigerator odors from other foods.

Agateware is easily chipped, so don't scrape out food that becomes stuck in it.

Sweet Prunes—A very delicious as well as unusual way of serving prunes for breakfast is to soak them in fruit juices. Whenever a jar of fruit is opened save the juices and put a few prunes in the jar. When they have become swollen they are ready to be eaten.

Meaning of Progress

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adlerika. Adlerika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adlerika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adlerika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adlerika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. At all Leading Druggists.

Giants Worry Less Over Flag Rivals Than Own Future

After long hours of watching practice and conversing with the Giants, I am forced to report that even though the Southern heat has taken the aches away from the winter-softened muscles, the athletes are far from happy. Definitely, they are devoting much of their time to worrying about what is going to happen to them this season.

The National league champions—the Haslins, Meltons and Chiozzas, who recently have come into our midst, as well as the old reliable pennant-winning Otts, Hubbells and Moores—know they have a pretty fair ball club. Many of them feel that Pittsburgh probably is the best club in the league, but they are not unduly perturbed by thoughts of the Pirates. Accidents and a long-continued inability to maintain a championship pace again will eliminate Pie Traynor's hopefuls, they believe.

Similarly, the Cards are not such bogeymen as newspaper reports would have you understand. Any Giant will admit that Dizzy Dean is one of the greatest pitchers of all time; that Durocher is a superb shortstop, and that Medwick is tops among outfielders. But—just as they feel that the Cubs have not strengthened sufficiently and that the Reds will have a nuisance rather than a pennant-winning value—the Giants are not fretting about their St. Louis brethren.

What really concerns them is their own estate. Given breaks such as they received in 1936, Bill Terry and the boys are sure they can triumph again. Their worry is that such breaks may not be repeated. While worrying, they might wonder if a little added strength here and there might not ease them of their burdens. Let us consider the case. Three of the five catchers warrant little immediate consideration. Jim Sheehan, who gives promise of real hitting prowess some day, is far too inexperienced even for third string duty now. Madjeski and Spencer merely are third-stringers. That leaves Mancuso and Danning.

Bill Terry

Probably—although Mancuso never was fast and his thirty-one years have not improved his ailing dogs—that is enough. Danning, a shrewd young man who can hit, has been with the Giants most of the time since 1931. This is his make-or-break season.

Johnny McCarthy, tossed around for several seasons by the Dodgers and Yankees, has had most of the first base call. It is unlikely that he will continue there. Leslie does not field like a Terry or even a McCarthy. But Sam is a steady workman, and an abdominal operation has restored his health. He can hit, and the Giants need power too much to pass him by. That means first base will be conducted in good, reliable fashion.

So also will be second base and shortstop. Whitehead is a very good fielder and team player. Probably he is not quite as good a hitter as his .278 average last year indicates. But, placed properly in the batting order, he will not weaken the attack. Bartell—even though occasionally given to making plays the hard way—is a good shortstop.

Third base is a problem. Lou Chiozza, Mickey Haslin and Tommy Thevenow have been working out there, but it is unlikely that Mickey and Tommy are being considered for anything save utility roles. That means Chiozza, placed in Joe Moore's old leadoff spot in the first-game lineups, is considered the regular at the moment.

Possibly Lou—a fair fielder and hitter with the Phillies—will continue there. A slender, alert, prematurely gray, twenty-six-year-old man who lives in Terry's own Memphis, he is in somewhat of a spot now, though. As in all the years of Terry's management, the Giants must depend this season on superb pitching, a tight defense and the best possible use of their hits.

Moore is as good a leadoff man as there is in baseball. He is on base frequently. Possibly his sharp hits will do the Giants as much good if he bats in the fourth or fifth position. Possibly—because this seems likely to be his last season at the Polo Grounds—it is time to develop a new leadoff man. There remains the question whether there will be anybody on base when he comes to bat along with Ott, Leiber and Leslie, the only power boys.

GABBING WITH JIM BRADDOCK:

THE big man in the brown coat, red sport shirt and striped flannel trousers was on his way to get a much needed shave, but, as greedier fellows have found out to their own scurvy advantage, he is one of the world's most kindly citizens. While the Florida sun beat down he stood and talked.

There were questions, naive and wondering, as to why a supposedly vacationing reporter should fly over from Havana just for the day. There were other questions, reflecting all the zeal of a grown-up who had not forgotten New Jersey sandlot days. They concerned the Giants' pitching problems and what Travis Jackson might do with the new farm across the river this season.

Then there were answers. "Yeah, Mae was along. She liked this place pretty much and she deserved a vacation. No, the kids hadn't come. One of them was in school and there wasn't much sense in breaking up the routine of the others just for a couple of weeks down here. He'd bring them back some swell presents though and he'd bet they liked that." Would, asked the reporter, any of them be as swell as the "turtle" he brought home two Junes ago?

Jim Braddock grinned. When he was preparing to fight Max Baer for that mysterious thing called the heavyweight title, the three little Braddocks could not quite understand all those big new words so suddenly come into the family vocabulary. They insisted that their daddy was going out to get them a "turtle."

Jim Braddock

When he finally arrived home with the title they were disappointed, perhaps foreseeing far better than others how empty a thing a championship is unless properly administered. So, being a wise and fond father, he had to go out and buy them a real live turtle as actual, visual evidence of good faith. The turtle still is doing well.

The title—?—Jim Braddock's grin slowly faded when the reporter mentioned it. He was not exactly embarrassed. The champion is too honest and well meaning to be swayed from his poise of simple dignity when alone. But new years make new friends and divide the best of loyalties. Perhaps while he answered, Jim was thinking of those two Junes ago when only one New York reporter had faith enough to remain in his camp, shout his praises and bet on him while later friends were yelping about 1,000 to 1 shots.

"Yeah, he felt swell. Later he would go up in the Wisconsin woods and rough it for a few weeks. Then he'd be ready. What? Sure, he'd had trouble with his hand last year. Arthritis, right here. Look."

Super Fighter of 1936 Looks Like Sucker Now

There was no comment while the reporter mentioned law suits, broken contracts, the chances of the public paying any kind of dough for two drab heavyweight championship affairs in one season and such things. Then another question brought a grin and animate response. "Yeah, the super-fighter of last year did look like the sucker fighter now. Yeah, that Schmeling would be a harder guy to lick. He didn't lead to you and he was cute. Hard to hit and hit pretty hard. Had the old experience that was what it was.

"Yeah, Louis was a counter fighter, too. But you could kid him into making leads and going haywire, and Pastor, strictly a one-track guy, that Louis. When you got him off the track, well he—— Bandages? Let him have all he wanted. It was the tape that really counted. Besides a guy with big hands really needed more bandages than——."

There was a polite pause while the reporter mentioned that Louis' hands were woefully small and soft for a heavyweight, scarcely two-thirds as large as those of Braddock and by no means as calloused. This was a point that the champion evidently never had previously considered.

Just as evidently, though, it was a point that did not interest him. That could mean he really does not expect to fight the much feared "Brown Bomber" or does not expect to get hit if he does. Perhaps he is right about the not getting hit part. When he said it just after the Louis-Carnera spectacle I believed him, wrote it and got a few thousand rebuking letters in return.

Now — well, this correspondent still thinks Louis is the most overrated fighter of the era. He also hates to spoil the memory of a pleasant sunshiny morning's conversation with one of the world's most genuine guys.

But—no matter what has happened mentally, the Braddock who fights this summer will not be physically the same Braddock who wrested that "turtle" from Baer.

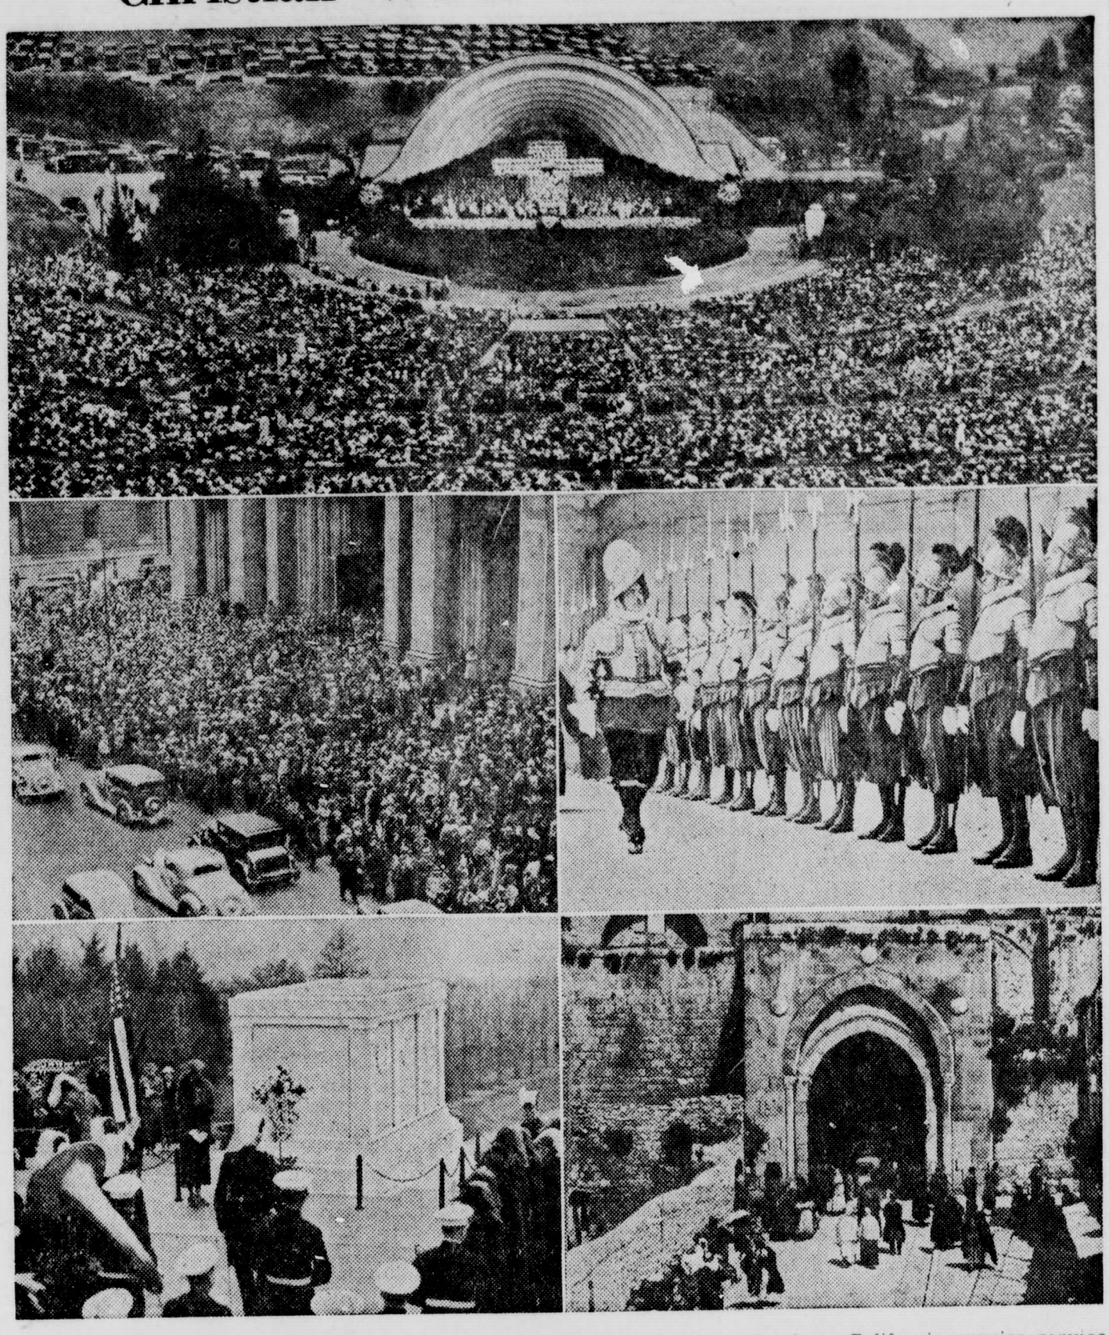
Christian World Celebrates Easter



The Easter spirit finds its way everywhere. Top photograph shows the huge California sunrise service, an annual observance. Left center picture shows a typical Easter church crowd on New York's Fifth avenue. At right center are members of the ancient Swiss Guard at the Vatican in Rome, where they play an important part in Easter ceremonies. Lower left photo shows Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt placing a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's tomb at Washington last Easter morning. Ancient Jerusalem is pictured in its unchanging atmosphere at the right.

Easter Parade Features Veils, Lacy Neckwear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Veils in all manner of treatment and lacy, frilly lingerie neckwear with the ultra feminine look is the big news for spring. And more news—many of the smart hats are worn far back on the head. See the tiny off-the-face cap (cap-hats are "it" in Paris) here pictured. Three American beauty roses are posed atop this cap of navy felt. The perky little veil is of navy blue string. The navy crepe frock takes on dainty lace lingerie accents in accord with the latest dictates of spring fashion.

One of the especially flattering jabots of white lace so enthusiastically endorsed to enhance the simple dark frock this spring is also shown. This is a favorite type. It has the high close neckband and a full double ruffle beneath.

"Gros Bourdon"

Quebec reverts to its native French customs at Easter. Bells, led by the great 24,780-pound "Gros Bourdon," chime out tidings that draw thousands each year.

Royal Easter Egg!

Inside an Easter egg presented to the eldest daughter of Louis XV of France was a clockwork bird, capable of singing 12 airs.

The Splendor of Lilies . . .

OH, rare as the splendor of lilies,
And sweet as the violet's breath,
Comes the jubilant morning of Easter,
The triumph of Life over Death;
And fresh from the earth's quickened bosom
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin soft petals
To carpet a path for our King.

In the countless green blades of the meadow,
The sheen of the daffodil's gold,
In the tremulous blue on the mountains,
The opaline mist on the wold,
In the tinkle of brooks through the pasture,
The river's strong sweep to the sea,
Are signs of the day that is hasting
In gladness to you and to me!

Oh, dawn in thy splendor of lilies,
Thy fluttering violet breath,
Oh, jubilant morning of Easter,
Thou triumph of Life over Death!
Then fresh from the earth's quickened bosom
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin soft petals
To carpet a path for our King!

Short-Lived Governments

France has had 100 governments—premiers and their cabinets—or an average of one every eight months since becoming a republic for the third time in 1871. Not one has served a full term of four years because each has been forced to resign the first time that one of its bills was voted down by the National Assembly, an act which is indicative of a lack of confidence in the cabinet. —Collier's Weekly.

LEGION GIVES CO-OPERATION IN SCHOOL WEEK

Declares Adequate Education Is Necessary To Cope With Changing Conditions That Exist In Business World

stant betterment of our educational institutions is imperative if we are to meet our social and economic problems successfully and maintain our status as a liberty loving people capable of self-government and competent to cope with the involved problems of this challenging era when change and readjustment are on every hand.

"There are many thousands of our people who through lack of educational training and preparation are unable to find a place under the demands of this modern work a day world. Many of this class must be a permanent charge on our working citizenry.

ENCOURAGE EDUCATION

"The American Legion feels that education should be encouraged and that opportunity should be given to the under developed and the handicapped to better prepare themselves to become assets rather than liabilities in the communities in which they live. The standard of living which we enjoy in America today is in a large measure the direct result of the development of our splendid educational institutions.

"During Public Schools Week citizens of the State of California are urged to visit their community and neighborhood public schools in order that they may learn first hand the fact that our public schools are performing the services required of them in preparing our youth for worthy citizenship."

This year's celebration of Public Schools Week marks the eighteenth annual observance of the event.

POINT SAN PEDRO ROCKAWAY BEACH

They say "no news is good news." The continuous rain of the past week kept people indoors and diminished what little news there might have been under normal conditions. So there must be plenty of the "no news" that is "good news" waiting to be appropriated. Sunday, which is usually a busy day, with sounds of hammering and sawing, and flower growers out in their gardens digging up the earth, was, to all intents, a perfectly dead day, with only the patter patter of the rain to break the stillness.

Forrest Cubbon reports that not a single boat went out and that everything is coated with the crude oil that drifts in from the wrecked tanker up at the Gate. Boats, tackle, oars—all gummed with the slippery oil. But now, with the oil gradually wearing off, there are hopes that the local fishing industry will wake up again. Rough water, too, made fishing almost impossible, with the waves beating a thunderous tattoo on beach and cliffs.

U. S. May Allocate Millions For Safety

A comprehensive report on the air safety survey conducted by a senate commerce committee recommended this week immediate expenditure of $12,414,000 for "proven aids" to air transportation and revival of the post of assistant secretary of commerce for air.

Additional weather bureau stations, directional beams, two way radio communication stations, emergency landing fields and blinkers on mountain tops were recommended in the report. Most of these aids would be concentrated in the Far West, in the territory west of Salt Lake where several planes crashed recently.

From the viewpoint of safety, efficiency and continued progress in the newest mode of transportation the report, based on evidence gathered by the committee during its year and a half investigation, asserted that immediate appropriation of the $12,414,000 was "the most pressing action facing congress."

SANITARY BOARD FOR BAYSHORE MOVES MEETING

by the Sanitary Board. About a year and a half ago the board moved its meeting place from the Bayshore Fire Hall and rented the lower auditorium of the Voters League Hall in which to hold business sessions. Several meetings were held in the lower auditorium of the League building. Voluntarily, but with permission of the Voters League, the Sanitary Board moved their meetings into the upper auditorium. League members allege that technically the Sanitary Board, to the current date, has been renting the lower auditorium in spite of the fact meetings were held upstairs.

Valley Basketball Season Is Opened

The Visitacion Valley Basketball team got under way, Monday of this week, with the first games of a double round robin system played at Visitacion Valley Community center.

Teams which composed the league are the Captains and Jeepes, Bayview District; the Mustangs, Precita District, and two teams representing Visitacion Valley. These teams are made up of boys between the ages of 12 and 16 years. They play every Monday evening at the Community Center.

The leaders, under the direction of Allan Bell, boys director of Visitacion Valley Community Center, with the aid of James Coen, Nevin Caverro and Frank McIntyre, are officials of the league.

The first game of the league was featured by star performances of the captains of both teams. Captain Billy Lynn, Visitacion Team No. 2, was high point man with 11 points and Captain F. Cassidy, of the Mustangs, collected 9 counters. The valley team, after a hard fought first half, ran away with the Mustangs to win 30 to 18.

Games next week feature Visitacion Team No. 2, meeting the Bayview Captains and Visitacion Team No. 1, encounter the Mustangs. These games are open to the public and anyone who would like to attend as a spectator is welcome.

U. S. Living Costs Jump Six Per Cent

Statistics compiled by the United States Commissioner of Labor show that living costs in this country have jumped 6 per cent in the past three years.

Reports from the commissioner show food constitutes 32 per cent of the family budget, clothing 12 per cent and transportation 9 per cent.

The worker must have $1.06 now to buy what he did two years ago with $1. It is asserted that President Roosevelt is "particularly interested" in the living costs situation.

Eleven applications for membership in Fern Leaf Camp 808, W. O. W., have been made this month, reported the membership committee at a camp meeting Wednesday evening of last week. The meeting was well attended.

After the business session members were invited to a St. Patrick party. Refreshments were served and the guests danced. On behalf of the camp, Mrs. Miller presented pottery sets to two of the young lady members who were recently married, Mrs. Fay Miller and Mrs. Natalie Nelson, formerly Miss Fay Ford and Miss Natalie Blawatt.

REDWOOD WORST

Redwood City was hardest hit by the storms, with basements of the McKinley School, public library and the office of the County Agricultural Commissioner being flooded.

Heaviest rainfall in the county was recorded at the headwaters of Pescadero Creek, where six inches of rain fell from Saturday night until Sunday noon. For the same period more than four and a half inches fell in the mountains on the Pescadero Creek Ridge.

At Half Moon Bay 1.30 inches of rain was recorded Monday. Half Moon Bay Creek overflowed its banks and swept the flat lands. Artichoke fields, chicken houses and flower gardens were under water and the creek resembled a river. In many places the roads were also under water.

New WPA Director Announces Changes

Robert W. Meade, newly appointed WPA manager for San Mateo County, announced, this week, several changes to be made in the local set up of the Works Progress Administration.

On April 1 the county office, now at Howard avenue and Park road, Burlingame, will be moved to the old Peninsula Studio building on Peninsular avenue, east of the railroad tracks, Burlingame.

Work will be speeded on the Colma Creek and drainage project, the Chinese cemetery road near Colma and street improvements in Brisbane.

The Burlingame division of the county sewing project has been discontinued, all workers being absorbed by the Colma and Redwood City units.

COUNTY MAP

Effective April 1, all work on the county relief map, under construction in Burlingame for several months, will be carried on in Redwood City, under guidance of the county planning commissioners. The map is approximately half completed.

On April 6, a new project for laying pipe and an underground water sprinkling system for Orange avenue Park, South San Francisco, will begin. Cost is to be approximately $5000, with 44 men employed.

Some 560 workers, including professional and technical employes, are at present on the county WPA payroll. The San Mateo County WPA program also includes improvement of the La Honda-Tunitas road, completion of Twenty-Fourth avenue, San Mateo, a culvert project at Belmont, a new culvert for Brisbane, a storm sewer at Redwood City, culverts on Woodside road and a sanitary sewer system at Menlo Park.

PHANTOMS MEET

The Phantom Club of San Bruno met, Tuesday afternoon of this week, at the home of Mrs. H. S. Sterns, 382 Angus avenue.

Luncheon was served and the members spent the afternoon sewing and discussing current topics. Those present were Mesdames Bannister, Day, Henley, Grant, Preston, Barcos and Sterns.

ROAD SHOW WILL ESTABLISH RUN AT THE COLUMBIA

"Help Yourself" Proves One Of Most Delightful Farces Seen Here In Years

If Federal Theaters are really trying to re-establish the spoken drama via road shows which are to be taken to smaller communities throughout the land, they have made an auspicious start by sending out the "Help Yourself" company, which opened a brief two weeks engagement at the Columbia Monday night of this week.

In the parlance of the advance agent, the show really is a "wow" and as such was accorded a demonstrative reception by the usual packed house on San Francisco first nights.

An amazing situation is quickly evolved with the rise of the curtain on the first act, a situation so startlingly ridiculous that it took the audience several minutes to realize that they were witnessing one of the cleverest farce comedies that has come this way in many moons. With realization, however, the fun began and through three acts of unusually clean cut characterizations, hilarious situations and ever present possibilities of a romance between a down-and-outer and a banker's daughter, this he-cinderella composition wins the palm for good entertainment up to this point of 1937.

PAUL REYNER
CARROLL BORLAND
Starring in "Help Yourself" at Columbia Theater

The touring company comes to San Francisco after a series of successful performances in many towns along the road from San Francisco and after a five weeks run in Los Angeles. The three principal parts are played by Paul Reyner, college man looking for a job; Peter Brocco, former room mate at college of Reyner, who has a job in a bank, and Carroll Borland, the banker's daughter.

Mr. Reyner, in need of a job, walks into a bank, hangs up his hat and coat and helps himself to work with delightful cheek and some success. The entire company of seventeen render a good account of the parts assigned them.

Red Cross Official Quits Relief Post

Helen Chesebrough, county Red Cross official, has resigned as a member of the San Mateo County relief committee, it was announced late last week by Reverend Michael R. Power, chairman of the committee. Miss Chesebrough said pressure of other activities made her resignation necessary.

Miss Chesebrough, vice chairman of the San Mateo County chapter of the American Red Cross, has been a member of the committee since it was first formed in 1932.

Mrs. H. S. Dana, vice chairman of the committee, James Ferguson, Colonel Felix B. La Crosse and J. E. Morrish, other members expressed their thanks for services Miss Chesebrough had rendered.

THE GARDEN MURDER CASE

—11—

"Oh, Markham—my dear Markham!" Vance shook his head sadly. "However . . . As you say. There is something back of the lady's histrionics. She has ideas. But she's circuitous. And she wants us to be like those Chinese gods who can't proceed except in a straight line. Sad. But let's try makin' a turn. The situation is something like this: An unhappy lady slips out through the butler's pantry and presents herself on the roof-garden, hopin' to attract our attention. Having succeeded, she informs us that she has proved conclusively that a certain Mr. Kroon has done away with Swift because of amorous jealousy. The lady herself, let us assume, is the spurned and not the spurner. She resents it. She has a temper and is vengeful—and she comes to the roof here for the sole purpose of convincing us that Kroon is guilty."

"But her story is plausible enough," said Markham aggressively. "Why try to find hidden meanings in obvious facts? Kroon could have done it. And your psychological theory regarding the woman's motives eliminates him entirely."

"It doesn't eliminate him at all. It merely tends to involve the lady in a rather unpleasant bit of chicanery. The fact is, her little drama here on the roof may prove most illuminatin'."

Vance stretched his legs out before him and sank deeper into his chair.

"Curious situation. Y' know, Markham, Kroon deserted the party about fifteen or twenty minutes before the big race—legal matters to attend to for a maiden aunt, he explained—and he didn't appear again until after I had phoned you. Assumed immediately that Swift had shot himself. Doubt inspired me to converse with the elevator boy. I learned that Kroon had not gone down or up in the elevator since his arrival here early in the afternoon . . ."

"What's that!" Markham exclaimed. "That's more than suspicious—taken with what we have just heard from this Miss Weatherby."

"I dare say." Vance was unimpressed. "The legal mind at work. But from my gropin' amateur point of view, I'd want more—oh, much more. However,"—Vance rose and meditated a moment—"I'll admit that a bit of lovin' communion with Mr. Kroon is definitely indicated." He turned to Heath. "Send the chappie up, will you, Sergeant?"

Heath nodded and started toward the door.

"And Sergeant," Vance halted him; "you might question the elevator boy and find out if there is any one else in the building whom Kroon is in the habit of calling on. If so, follow it up with a few discreet inquiries."

Heath vanished down the stairs, and a minute or so later Kroon sauntered into the study with the air of a man who is bored and not a little annoyed.

"I suppose I'm in for some more tricky questions," he commented.

After glancing about him, Kroon sat down leisurely at one end of the davenport. The man's manner, I could see, infuriated Markham, who leaned forward and asked in cold anger:

"Have you any urgent reasons for objecting to give us what assistance you can in our investigation of this murder?"

Kroon raised his eyebrows.

"None whatever," he said with calm superiority. "I might even be able to tell you who shot Woody."

"That's most interestin'," murmured Vance, studying the man indifferently. "But we'd much rather find out for ourselves, don't y' know."

Kroon shrugged maliciously and said nothing.

"When you deserted the party this afternoon, Mr. Kroon," Vance went on, "you gratuitously informed us that you were headed for a legal conference of some kind with a maiden aunt. Would you object to giving us, merely as a matter of record, the name and address of your aunt, and the nature of the legal documents?"

"I most certainly would object," returned Kroon coolly. "I fail to see why you should be interested in my family affairs."

Markham swung round toward the man.

"That's for us to decide," he snapped. "Do you intend to answer Mr. Vance's question?"

Kroon shook his head.

"I do not! I regard that question as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial. Also frivolous."

"Yes, yes." Vance smiled at Markham. "It could be, don't y' know. However, let it pass, Markham. Present status: Name and address of maiden aunt, unknown; nature of legal documents, unknown; reason for the gentleman's reticence, also unknown."

Markham resentfully mumbled a few unintelligible words and resumed smoking his cigar while Vance continued the interrogation.

"I say, Mr. Kroon, would you also consider it irrelevant—and the rest of the legal verbiage—if I asked you by what means you departed and returned to the Garden apartment?"

Kroon appeared highly amused.

"I'd consider it irrelevant, yes; but since there is only one sane way I could have gone and come back, I'm perfectly willing to confess to you that I took a taxicab to and from my aunt's."

Vance gazed up at the ceiling as he smoked.

"Suppose," he said, "that the elevator boy should deny that he took you either down or up in the car since your first arrival here this afternoon. What would you say?"

"I'd say that he had lost his memory—or was lying."

"Yes, of course. The obvious retort. Quite." Vance's eyes moved slowly to the man on the davenport. "You will probably have the opportunity of saying just that on the witness stand."

Kroon's eyes narrowed and his face reddened. Before he could speak, Vance went on.

"And you may also have the opportunity of officially giving or withholding your aunt's name and address. The fact is, you may find yourself in the most distressin' need of an alibi."

Kroon sank back on the davenport with a supercilious smile.

"You're very amusing," he commented lightly. "What next? If you'll ask me a reasonable question, I'll be only too happy to answer."

"Well, let's see where we stand." Vance suppressed an amused smile. "You left the apartment at approximately a quarter to four, took the elevator downstairs and then a taxi, went to your aunt's to fuss a bit with legal documents, drove back in a taxi, and took the elevator upstairs. Bein' gone a little over half an hour. During your absence Swift was shot. Is that correct?"

A Settlement Was Reached.

"Yes." Kroon was curt.

"But how do you account for the fact that when I met you in the hall on your return, you seemed miraculously cognizant of the details of Swift's passing?"

"We've been over that, too. I knew nothing about it. You told me Swift was dead, and I merely surmised the rest."

"Yes—quite. No crime in accurate surmisals. Deuced queer coincidence, however. Taken with other facts. As likely as a five-horse win parlay. Extr'ordin'ry."

"I'm listening with great interest." Kroon had again assumed his air of superiority. "Why don't you stop beating about the bush?"

"Worth-while suggestion." Vance crushed out his cigarette and got up. "What I was leadin' up to was the fact that someone has definitely accused you of murdering Swift."

Kroon started, and his face went pale. After a few moments he forced a harsh gutteral noise intended for a laugh.

"And who, may I ask, has accused me?"

"Miss Madge Weatherby."

One corner of Kroon's mouth went up in a sneer of hatred.

"She would! And she probably told you that it was a crime of passion—caused by an uncontrollable jealousy."

"Just that," nodded Vance. "It seems you have been forcing your unwelcome attentions upon her, with dire threats; whereas, all the time, she was madly enamored of Mr. Swift. And so, when the strain became too great, you eliminated your rival."

"Well, I'll be damned!" Kroon thrust his hands deep into his pockets. "I see what you're driving at. Why didn't you tell me this in the first place?"

"Waitin' for the final odds," Vance returned. "You hadn't laid your bet. But now that I've told you, do you care to give us the name and address of your maiden aunt and the nature of the legal documents you had to sign?"

"That's all nonsense," Kroon spluttered. "I don't need an alibi. When the time comes—"

At this moment Heath appeared at the door, and walking directly to Vance, handed him a page torn from his note-book, on which were several lines of handwriting.

Vance read the note rapidly as Kroon looked on with malignant resentment. Then he folded the paper and slipped it into his pocket.

"When the time comes . . ." he murmured. "Yes—quite." He raised his eyes lazily to Kroon. "As you say. When the time comes. The time has now come, Mr. Kroon."

The man stiffened, but did not speak.

"Do you, by any chance," Vance continued, "know a lady named Stella Fruemon? Has a snug little apartment on the seventeenth floor of this building—only two floors below. Says you were visitin' her around four o'clock today. Left her at exactly four-fifteen. Which might account for your not using the elevator. Also for your reluctance to give us your aunt's name and address. Might account for other things as well . . . Do you care to revise your story?"

Kroon appeared to be thinking fast. He walked nervously up and down the study floor.

"Puzzlin' and interestin' situation," Vance went on. "Gentleman leaves this apartment at—let's say—ten minutes to four. Family documents to sign. Doesn't enter the elevator. Appears in apartment two floors below within a few minutes—been a regular visitor there. Remains till 4:15. Then departs. Shows up again in this apartment at half-past four. In the meantime, Swift is shot through the head—exact time unknown. Gentleman is apparently familiar with various details of the shooting. Refuses to give information regarding his whereabouts during his absence. A lady accuses him of the murder, and demonstrates how he could have accomplished it. Also kindly supplies the motive. Fifteen minutes of gentleman's absence—namely, from 4:15 to 4:30—unaccounted for."

Vance drew on his cigarette.

"I say, Mr. Kroon, any suggestions?"

Kroon came to a sudden halt and swung about.

He sucked in a deep noisy breath and made a despairing gesture. "All right, here's the story. Take it or leave it. I've been mixed up with Stella Fruemon for the past year. She's nothing but a gold-digger and blackmailer. Madge Weatherby got on to it. She's the jealous member of this combination—not me. And she cared about as much for Woode Swift as I did. Anyway, I got involved with Stella Fruemon. It came to a show-down, and I had to pay through the nose. To avoid scandal for my family, of course. At any rate, we each got our lawyers, and a settlement was reached. She finally named a stiff figure and agreed to sign a general release from all claims. In the circumstances, I had no alternative. Four o'clock today was the time set for the completion of the transaction. My lawyer and hers were to be at her apartment. The certified check and the papers were ready. So I went down there a little before four to clean up the whole dirty business. And I cleaned it up and got out. I had walked down the two flights of stairs to her apartment, and at 4:15, when the hold-up was over, I walked back up the stairs."

Kroon took a deep breath and frowned.

"I was so furious—and relieved—that I kept on walking without realizing where I was going. When I opened the door which I thought led into the public hallway outside the Garden apartment, I found I was on the terrace of the roof. When I saw where I was I thought I'd come through the garden and go down the stairway there. It was really the natural thing to do . . ."

"You knew about the gate leading into the garden, then?"

"I've known about it for years. Everybody who's been up here knows about it. Anything wrong with my knowing about the gate?"

"No. Quite natural. And so, you opened the gate and entered the garden?"

"Yes."

"And that would be between a quarter after four and twenty minutes after four?"

"I wasn't holding a stop-watch on myself, but I guess that's close enough . . . When I entered the garden I saw Swift slumped down in his chair. His position struck me as funny, but I paid no attention to it until I spoke to him and got no answer. Then I approached and saw the revolver lying on the tiles, and the hole in his head. It gave me a hell of a shock, I can tell you, and I started to run downstairs to give the alarm. But I realized it would look bad for me. There I was, alone on the roof with a dead man . . ."

"Ah, yes. Discretion.. So you played safe. Can't say that I blame you entirely—if your chronology is accurate. So, I take it, you re-entered the public stairway and came down to the front door of the Garden apartment."

"That's just what I did."

"By and by, during the brief time you were on the roof, or even often you returned to the stairway, did you hear a shot?"

Kroon thought a moment.

You Need Not Stop Reading in Order to Rest the Eyes

Good Advice Given by Ophthalmologist

Cambridge, Mass. — Read when, where and how you like, but insist on sufficient illumination, use glasses if glasses are necessary, and have a periodic eye examination every two or three years.

This is the fundamental principle for the care of the eyes, Dr. Theodore L. Terry, instructor in ophthalmology at the Harvard medical school, declared in an address here.

Do not try to save your vision by avoiding reading, sewing or the movies, he advised, because eyes do not wear out. It is disease, he declared, that destroys vision.

To avert disease he advised periodic examinations. Often, he said, diseased conditions can be discovered in such examinations before the patient notices any symptoms. Naturally the eyes are then much more amenable to early treatment than when the maladies progress.

Some Danger Signals.

Aside from these regular examinations, however, Dr. Terry also urged examinations when any blurring of vision, inflammation or pain in the eyes, or headaches related to their use, is noticed. Important danger signals, he warned, are rainbow-like halos around artificial lights, and blurred vision early in the morning which clears as the day advances.

Any eye examination, he emphasized, should invariably include a general survey of the eye as a whole because that organ very frequently can be used as a barometer of disease in some other part of the body. At times, he said, evidence of other dangerous diseases have been found in eye examinations, and, again, many are amenable to treatment if discovered early. Included among diseases of this type, he cited, are kidney disorders, tuberculosis, syphilis, various blood diseases, several types of poisons and even brain tumors.

The Eye Grows.

Periodic check-ups, he continued, are also important to meet changing conditions of the eye, for that organ, like the fingernails and the hair, has the ability to grow throughout life. Thus, even adults occasionally need changes of glasses, possibly every two years. If glasses need to be changed every few months, he warned, it may be the beginning of a serious disease, maybe glaucoma, diabetes or cataract.

While improper glasses do not produce permanent damage to the eyes, except in the case of crossed eyes or possibly in nearsightedness, they may be responsible for ocular fatigue, sleepiness and headaches.

Concerning crossing of the eyes, Dr. Terry said that in many instances it can be corrected by glasses if they are used soon after the condition begins, even in children eighteen months of age. An operation corrects the appearance but does not restore normal eye condition. A misalignment in the adult, he said, is usually due to a spasm or paralysis of one or more of the eye-turning muscles and may indicate serious trouble.

Ground Fire Found Bad Medicine for West's White Pine

Washington.—Fire in the forest, which is now actually used in the South as a tool for the control of yellow pine timber growth, is still wholly "bad medicine" so far as western white pine is concerned.

So declares E. F. Rapraeger of the U. S. Forest Service, who has recently completed a study of fire effects in the great historic timberlands of Idaho, which Lewis and Clark saw on their famous exploration trip during the presidency of Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Rapraeger has studied extensive areas of Western white pine in this region, and finds that the effects of even "mild" ground fires are never beneficial.

Bad In Three Ways.

He found that fire damage was discernible in three different ways: through understocking and reduced yields, through decay started in burn - wounds on the trees and through the encouragement of excessive branching which results in rough timber of lowered market value.

Mr. Rapraeger concludes: "Evidently complete protection from fire is essential from infancy to maturity if the aim is to grow Western white pine of high quality."

It's a Party Sure Enough!

AND the girl holding the curtains back, just looking on, might be joining the fun except for her misconception that "party" clothes are hard to sew. She made the neat sweet house model she's wearing with no trouble at all—but—

And Here's the Story.

"Marge, did you really make your pretty dress all yourself? It looks so elaborate; I'd be afraid to cut into chiffon like that for fear I'd ruin it."

"Be yourself, Rose. It doesn't take a bit more skill to make my dress than yours. The pattern explains everything. You can't go wrong. I get a double kick out of making a party frock—I feel important sewing it and elegant wearing it. I couldn't begin to have so many party clothes if I didn't belong to The-Sew-Your-Own!"

Mother Made Daughter's Dress.

"Joanie, dear, aren't you beginning this party business pretty young?"

"No, Auntie Rose, of course not. I've another one just like it that Grandma made for me. It's red and it has blue bands around it. I'm going to wear it to school tomorrow.

"Well, I see where I've got to get some silks and crepe, pluck up my nerve, and have clothes like other people. I wanted to join the Jolly Twelve but I just felt I didn't have anything to wear. Now I've decided to join The Sewing Circle and make a real fashion debut, come Spring!"

The Patterns.

Pattern 1237 is for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4⅔ yards of 35 inch material plus five-eighths of a yard contrasting.

Pattern 1852 comes in sizes 2 to 8 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 or 39 inch material. To trim as pictured 6 yards of ribbon are required.

Feathered Cosmeticians

Woodpeckers are surgeons; with their strong, sharp beaks they cut down to the haunts of mischief-makers in the wood and extract them with barbed tongues. But there are other, smaller birds that haunt tree trunks in winter—chickadee, brown creeper, and nuthatch—whose beaks are not stout enough for the woodpecker's drastic technique. These birds simply search crevices and crannies in the bark, prying and digging out insects and small cocoons that may be hibernating there. They are skin specialists — cosmeticians.—Science Service.

Richard Graves, the state secretary, spoke of legislation proposed at Sacramento which will affect municipalities.

The city attorney of San Bruno spoke on charters for sixth class cities covered by Proposition No. 24, which was passed in the state election last November. SIXTY CHILDREN ESCAPE INJURY IN STAGE CRASH into the plate glass front of a chain store at 5901 Mission street.

Plunging through the store front, the bus sent glass, canned goods and vegetables flying in all directions.

John Erkelens, 22, of 2785 San Jose avenue, clerk in charge of the store, and several customers escaped injury.

Mrs. Sudro, however, apparently was caught in the wreckage of a big vegetable stand, which finally halted the stage.

Several windows of the bus, driven by Frank Serpa, 1640 Broderick street, were shattered. So far as could be learned not one of the children suffered a scratch, although all were badly shaken up.

Passing pedestrians rushed to the assistance of Armento and Miss Alaga, helping them out of the automobile, which was turned over on one side by the impact.

All injured were sent to a San Francisco hospital, while the 60 children were transferred to another bus hastily dispatched to the scene, and continued their trip to the cemetery.
